As you review your writing, see if there are sentences or details that you can link together. Try to add something more (another fact, thought, or even another question).

Intermediate Mid

You write well enough to ask simple questions and accomplish what you need. You can link some sentences together.

You do all of this in a way that your teacher and others who are used to the writing of language learners can understand your writing.

Intermediate Low

You write well enough to ask simple questions and accomplish what you need. You write in single sentences.

You can do this in a way that your teacher and others who are used to the writing of language learners can understand your writing.

Add more information; use a variety of vocabulary. Make your writing more interesting by forming sentences or questions in different ways. Frequently review your writing for accuracy and correctness.

Novice High

Much of the time you write well enough to express your own thoughts and get the things that you need. You write in phrases and some sentences.

You can do all of this in a way that your teacher and others who are used to the writing of language learners can understand what you are writing most of the time.

As often as possible write about yourself and your life. Write reminders to yourself, write comments, jot down questions that you want to remember to ask. Write as many sentences as you can.

Novice Mid

You can list, name, and identify everyday things with words and phrases and an occasional simple sentence.

You can do all of this in a way that your teacher and others who are used to the writing of language learners can understand most of what you are writing.

Practice writing words and phrases. Make lists.

Novice Low

You can list, name, and identify common things with single words.

You can do this in a way that your teachers and others who are used to the writing of language learners can understand some of what you are writing.
